A generation or two ago everybody consisted of currons revenue which, except in rare instances, were paid by the foreign producer, while $22,600,600 was taken from American citizens in the form of customs receipts, while the Wilson administration the receipts amounted to $53,100,000 a month, but of this amount only $19-600,000 is paid by the foreigner in the warf of the warf. Those Americans who have been compelled to pay taxes every time they gave a note or renewed one, to put special government stamps on every telegram they sent and to pay a special tax on every long distance telephone message they sent will ap-preciate the truth of the statement that for every dollar of tax paid by the foreigner in the form of tariff, the American citizen pays $1.79 in sepecial taxes. It is largely this gross mismanagement of the public finances which has so greatly dis-gusted a majority of American citi-zens as to insure a Republican victory next November.

A Great Achievement.

To Secretary McAdoo belongs the credit for the greatest achievement in the financial history of the government. He is the only secretary of the treasury who has added $87,000,000 to the 'not balance' of the treasury over night. On the night of September 30, 1915, those who keep track of the treasury balance went to bed con-vinced that it amounted to $40,000,-000. On the morning of October 1, be costly to someone. With no surthey awoke to discover that it plus income, as a people, the millions amounted to $127,000,000. It is not necessary to accept anyone's word for this. The daily treasury statements are public records and may be obtained by anyone on application. They tell the story—that is, half the story. The real story was that Mr. McAdoo, who had been practicing for his balancing feat for some time, had merely added over $60,000,000 already placed to the credit of disbursing officers and $23,000,000 which had been set apart for national hank not great redeavelength.

Speaker Clark has from the first been open and determined in his opposition to an additional stamp tax. Other influential members of Congress have, furthermore, opposed any tax on gasolene and gasolene engines.

As a consequence, Mr. Wilson has had to devise some new method of taxation, and to this end has proposed and material increase of the income tax, the imposition of an inheritance tax and a special tax on the manufacture and special tax on the manufacture.

Others believe a national inheritance tax will prove unpopular for the reason that this has thus far been a field left open to the state governments, meet of the states deriving a very considerable part of their income from inheritance taxation. In the case of the tax on munitions, there is little doubt that, could it be so imposed as to insure its coming there is little doubt that, could it be so imposed as to insure its coming out of the pockets of the manufacturers, it would command pretty general approval. But if, as some fear, it will be merely passed on to the workingnen in these hazardous undortakings, resulting in a decrease of wages for those who perform the actual labor, it also will doubtless prove highly unpopular. ly unpopular.

In any event, its imposition will serve primarily to bring home to the people the westul incompetence of the Democrats in running the goverr-ment and their wanton disregard of their own pledges of economy in pubic expenditures.

The Star of Thrift.

The Star of Theift.

The world had forgotten how to be peer. It was sahamed to practice thrift. Wealth had been increasing prodigiously without saving. The advent of mechanism and the increased efficiency on the part of men had been creating wealth faster than it could be consumed. The homely virtue of thrift had dishnegrated. Nobely had to save. Under the recent Republican adbetter living did not economize, but ministration there flowed into the treasury each month revenue amounting to approximately. 345 500 come but fiction.

Then came the war. Everybody was no rich that the world thought it could fight on stored capital. Why save a few hundred millions to pay for a war that cost billions? It would be a brief struggle at best. Why not pay for it borrowed money? Only recently has it dawned on the people of Europe that they have stopped creating new capital, been destroying the old in sui-cidal amounts and only close economy and thriffy living on the part of all can save the world from bankruptcy. The governments first borrowed all they could; but realizing that they would soon exhaust their borrowing powers turned their attention to tax-ation and to thrift. This process has been sobering and heroic, and meas-ures are now being taken everywhere in Europe to meet the rising cost of war by thrift plans. These methods involve sacrifice, huge taxes, and a willingness to do without, and involve far reaching economic changes.

Having adjusted itself to thriftless conditions, the world cannot suddenly depart on a new thrift idea without doing considerable damage. For instance, if everybody should stop going to the movies it would save a lot of money, but disrupt and bankrupt thousands of firms and cut down the income of other thousands relying on this industry. We could do without many things, but the sacrifice would liam G. MicAdoo. How had he done for necessities and spend for war; but that is merely a conversion of wealth.

As One Who Has Done Most to Advance Knowledge of Physical Science.

At the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, the annual presentation of the Franklin medal and Cresson medal of the institute were made Wednesday

The Franklin medal, which is awarded annually to those workers of physical science or technology, without regard to country, who have done most to advance a knowledge of physical science or its application, was awarded to John J. Carty, chief engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and to Prof. Theodore W. Richards of Harvard University. The award to Mr. Carty was made "in rec-ognition of his long continued activaties in the telephone service, his important and varied contributtions to the telephone art, his work in the establishment of the principals of tele-phone engineering, and his signal suc-cess in directing the efforts of the large staff of engineers and scientists to the accomplishment of telephone transmission of speech over vast dis-The award to Prof. Richards was made in recognition of his nu-merous and important contributions to inorganic, physical and theoretical chemistry, and particularly his classi-cal theories of redeteminations of the atomic rights of the more important chemical elements.
